| Throughout this first week, I've had many interactions with many different people in the office, all providing their own benefits. The in office interns act as people to just connect to and be comfortable with on a more personal level. With the mentors and on site crew, they serve as valuable support and ways to gain valuable advice. With all the other speakers, they serve as areas to learn more about job roles, responsibilities, and overall areas to learn more in general. The combination of these three types of interactions has helped make this experience more helpful and comfortable in general. |

Prompt option 3: What are your main takeaways from this first half of your internship and how do you plan to carry those lessons into your second week?
